

What You Need to Know

Emily Velisek | director of events, show & membership activities

Attention NAILE Exhibitors!

As I am writing this article we are in the middle of September and the North American International Livestock Expo (NAILE) is still a go and they are planning full steam ahead until we are told differently. If NAILE is to cancel we will let our members know the best, we can. Until then, please do not forget to send in your stalling request and if you have any questions feel free to reach out. We will continue to follow the stalling policy that we did last year. Please see below as to what our stalling policy is. If you know of any new exhibitors planning to come, please pass this information along.

Stalling Policy; we will be following the NAILE stalling policy.

NAILE uses our entries from the previous year to plan how much stalling we receive for our breed. They will take a percentage away from our previous year entries and then take a percentage away for no shows of current entries. So, what does this mean for you?

We get less stalls assigned for Shorthorns than what are entered. We advise that you enter more head then what you plan to bring because we will cut down on your stall space from what you enter by the same percentage that we are cut by NAILE. Please add space for tack to your entries. (NAILE does not allow any tack space when assigning breed stalling space).

Example: IF North American was to take 30% away from us then we will take 30% off of what you entered. So, if you enter 10 head you will get 7 stalls.

If you have any stalling request, we will take them, but we cannot promise that you will get them as we will be stalling where you fit best. Stalling request need to be in by November 1st to Emily at emilyv@shorthorn.org, in order for them to be taken into consideration. Also, please contact Emily as soon as you know if you are coming or not coming to the show. Stall space will be made solely off of number of head entered. ☐
